Continuation of Substance of Interview including description of the general nature of what was agreed to if an agreement was reached, or any other comments:

The Attorney of Record presented his arguments that, in his view, the cited references did not teach all the claim limitations of the present invention.

In particular, the attorney stated that the teaching of Phillips's "hardware plug-in" (Phillips, column 14, lines 56-67, and column 32, line 65 through column 33, line 2) was different from the applicant's teaching of a "software plug-in". The examiner stated that the claims did not specify that the "plug-in" was a software type, and in addition, Phillips taught the "plug-in" interfacing with "applications".

Also, discussions were made over the term "floating pallet". The attorney stated that the term "floating pallet" in the applicant's invention was different from the "pop-up editing window" cited by the examiner (Beck et al, column 34, lines 32-34). The attorney stated that the "floating pallet" in the applicant's invention presented a "window" that would continuously "float" (be displayed) on the computer until "manually closed". The examiner noted that the term "floating pallet" was not explained in the applicant's specification.

The attorney will present his arguments along with any amendments to the claims in response to the examiner's previous Office Action.
